TRIAL DATE	CAPTION (client in bold)	VENUE	CLAIM	OUTCOME
February 2004	Everage v. Northern Indiana Public Service Company	LaGrange County Circuit Court, LaGrange, IN	Personal injury claim. Plaintiff claimed utility negligent in allegedly failing to “red tag” unelevated water heater in basement garage. Plaintiff suffered third degree burns over 87% of his body after spilling racing fuel on himself and the floor while working on race car. Defendant contended its gas service employees were never in the home to observe the improperly installed water heater, that the true source of ignition was an air compressor being used by plaintiff, and that the plaintiff’s own negligence was the sole proximate cause of his injuries.	Defense Verdict
June 2004	Davis v. OB/GYN	Porter County Superior Court, Valparaiso, IN	Whether the defendant negligently sutured right ureter during total abdominal hysterectomy procedure	Directed Verdict for Defendant
